

Šuma Čovjek Album Release „Fata Morgana“

28th of January, 2022

Šuma Čovjek are back with a second album! This coming 28th of January, the Swiss musicians will release "Fata Morgana" including 12 new songs.

The album was created in a time of great doubts. It remained unknown where the journey with these songs would go, when concerts or a tour would be possible. Through this fog of uncertainty, we drew a mirage of new beginnings in the distance. A mirage as a goal that gave hope, perspective, motivated us to go the way; always knowing that we would be able to do the journey alone. Not least because of this, many of the new songs are dedicated to the people around us who have contributed to us being where we are today.

Šuma Čovjek's sound remains unmistakable, offering lovingly staged songs that range from melancholic ballads to rhythmic Balkan pop. Linguistically, one can once again look forward to acrobatic leaps between French, Croatian and Arabic.

The pictures for the single and album covers were taken by the award-winning Swiss photographer Dominic Nahr. The videos were once again created by Serbian filmmakers Jelena Gavrilović and Marko Milovanović.

The album will be released while the band's club tour kicks off in January 2022 with around 15 concerts.

Šuma Čovjek released their first album, "No Man's Land", in 2018. The accompanying single "Bouge ton cœur" was one of the most played songs on SRF3 in 2018. The highlights of their concert tours so far have been performances at the Montreux Jazz Festival, Open Air St. Gallen, Zermatt Unplugged and the Winterthurer Musikfestwochen.
